WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

A weak frontal boundary will bring light rain to areas north of Cape Mendocino on Thursday. Then, building high pressure will result in a mostly dry weekend before a stronger system impacts northwest California. This system is capable of bringing rain and mountain snow to the region by early next week.

San Francisco Weather:

Dry conditions will continue through the weekend. Patchy fog and clouds near the coast will become more extensive Thursday night and Friday as a weak weather system moves onshore. A stronger low pressure system will arrive late Monday and Tuesday bringing a threat for showers, colder temperatures, and gusty winds.

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY

Sacramento Weather:

Breezy northerly winds will decrease in the valley this evening. A slight chance of showers over the mountains Thursday afternoon into Friday and possibly over the northern Sacramento valley Thursday evening. Temperatures above normal through Sunday then may cool to near normal to below normal early next week due to an unsettled weather pattern moving over the region. The best chance of showers over Interior northern California looks like Monday night into Tuesday night along with a slight chance of thunderstorms in the Valley Tuesday.

Hanford Weather:

Generally dry conditions and above normal temperatures will continue through the remainder of the work week. Early next week a storm system will approach the west coast and could bring cooler and showery weather to central California.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

Onshore flow will continue to bring cool temperatures to the area through Saturday with returning night through morning low clouds and fog. Morning drizzle is possible at coasts and valleys Friday morning. Expect warmer weather late in the weekend before a trough approaches on Tuesday bringing clouds and a cooling trend.

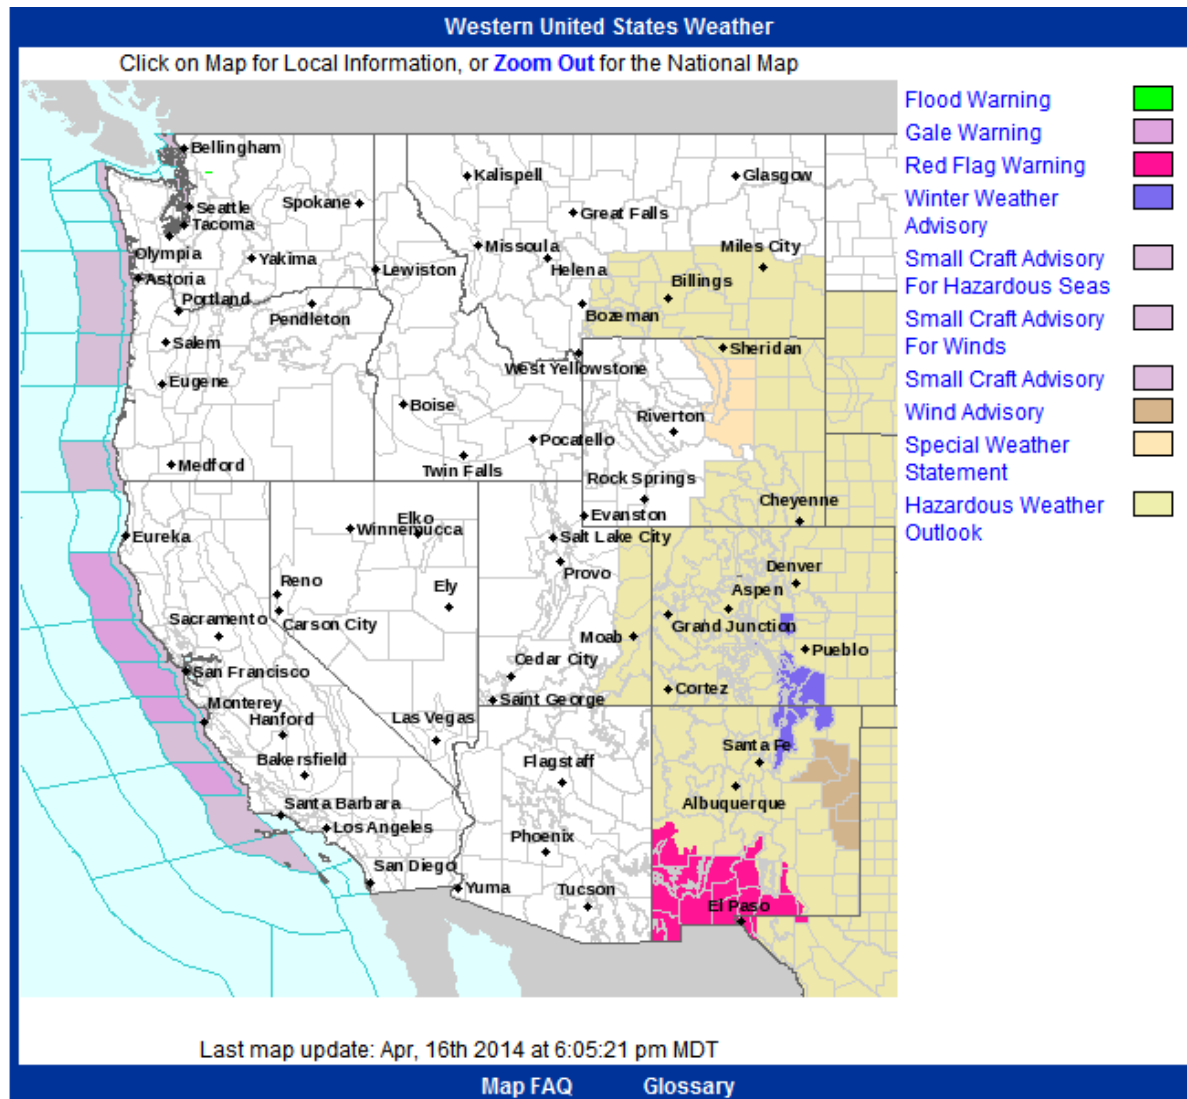

Extreme Southwestern California Including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

Fair and seasonal weather will continue through Thursday, with low clouds and fog in the coastal areas and inland valleys during the nights and mornings. Cooler on Friday and Saturday with more clouds, along with locally gusty winds in the mountains and deserts. Warmer inland Sunday and Monday under weak high pressure aloft. A deeper trough of low pressure will bring cooler weather and gusty southwest to west winds for next Tuesday and Wednesday.

Southeast California Weather:

Dry westerly flow aloft will persist through much of the work week with high temperatures warming into the 90s over the warmer deserts. A weak upper level low approaching from the East Pacific will spread increasing moisture and clouds into the area Friday into the early weekend, leading to a possibility for slightly cooler daytime temperatures. High pressure quickly returns through the late weekend.

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

- The SOC is activated at Level 2 in support of the Drought State of Emergency from 0800-1700 hours daily.
- The Inland REOC is activated at Level 2 from 0800-1700 Monday through Friday or as needed.

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

Situational Summary

On January 17, 2014 Governor Edmund G. Brown proclaimed a State of Emergency and directed state officials to take all necessary actions to prepare for drought conditions. The State Operation Center (SOC) is activated to implement objectives in support of the Governor's priorities. The lack of winter rain and snowfall has resulted in extremely dry conditions in many parts of the State. Reservoir levels are down significantly from where they should be on average for this time of year. If conditions continue without substantial rainfall, severe impacts to municipal water supplies, agriculture (plants and livestock) and firefighting capabilities are likely in store for the State over the next few months. Negative economic impacts will also result.

Dry weather continues through this week, with a slight chance of showers later this week along the state's northern border. Any precipitation will likely be minimal.

As our state's rainy season ends this month, very heavy rain and snow would have to fall throughout California every day for the remainder of April to near average annual rain and snowfall levels. Even with such precipitation, California would remain in drought conditions, due to low water supplies from the two previous dry years.

The drought could result in severe impacts to the municipal water supplies, wells, agriculture (plants and livestock) and firefighting capabilities for several months. The SOC continues to be activated to monitor the situation statewide, and support regional and local operational areas.

Situational Summary (cont'd)

Information as of 4/16/14

- The Taskforce continues to meet regularly to take actions that conserve water and coordinate state response to the drought.
- The most recent snowpack survey, conducted on April 1, recorded California snowpack at 32% of normal. A more recent update using automated devices shows snowpack at 28% of normal as of Sunday, April 13.
- DWR has announced that water essential for health and safety will be delivered through the state water project in spite of the zero allocation policy. Deliveries will be boosted if storms produce enough rain and snow to increase reservoir storage and the snow pack.
- Cal OES continues to gather drought-related costs from state agencies and local governments.
